During the late days of February 2017, on Bath Road in Slough, England; a local driver decided to go on a joyride. Which didn't end particularly well.

The driver had crashed into a tree, and his car (a Ford) had suddenly lit up into flames.

There were pedestrians walking passed, and some fled the scene in shock, others stayed and contacted Emergency Services.

Minutes later, the Emergency Services rushed to the scene, put out the fire and rushed the unconscious driver to the nearest hospital.

Susan Adams, a local eyewitness, stated, 'It was astonishing how quickly the flames had gone up into the sky in just a matter of moments!'

Another local eye-witness had caught a video of the incident:
